BOARD INSPECTION OF V. P. I. BUILDINGS

Campus During Battalion Dress.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
BLACKSBURG, VA., April 20. State Board of Agriculture to-day vis-ited the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and inspected the college building and grounds. At drill hours, they reviewed the cadet battallon, which made a fine showing. Later in the day, the board visited the college farm and inspected modern barns and building and the splenvisited the college farm and inspected modern barns and building and the splendid stock on exhibit. The State experiment station was also visited and inspected. The committee leaves well pleased with their reception, and the condition of the affairs of V. P. I.

Mr. Charles Thomas, who lives about four miles from Blacksburg, was driving a pair of spirited horses through the V. F. I. campus just as the battallon of cadets were being formed to be marched back to the barracks from dinner today. The driveway crosses the walk at the extreme right of the battallon, when drawn up for formation, and Mr. Thomas was obliged to stop at this point to wait until it had passed. Just as the battallon started the horses took fright at the drum, shied, and overturned the vehicle, throwing out a little boy, who was with Mr. Thomas, and dragging the latter some distance. The horses ran across the campus, and soon broke lose from the vehicle, after which they were soon stopped. Both Mr. Thomas and the boy were badly shaken up, but beyond this they were uninjured.

and Flood for Congress.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

KENT'S STORE. VA., April 20.—
Though this place is on the lower end of the county and very near the lines of Goochland and Louisa, it is always heard from about election times, and the expression of its citizens as to their favorite candidates bespeaks what the future is likely to be.

At this time Joseph E. Willard, the young statesman from Fairfax, seems to be their next choice for Governor, and Hal. D. Flood, of Appomaticx, for representative in Congress. The primary for election of all representatives is undoubtedly in favor among the voters of this section, and it is hoped that the next Democratic State convention will put in operation a plan for such primary that will be fair to all candidates.

The rural free delivery, which has lately been, established at this point, is giving general satisfaction to all of its patrons, which are increasing daily.

(Special to The Timus-Dinparch.)

DANVILLE, VA., April 20.—The Danville Anti-Saloon League, at a meeting held last night, decided to endorse the Democratic candidates in the coming municipal primary and to do all within its power to secure the election of good men for both branches of the City Council.

The Sunday school of the Mount Vernon Methodist Church has outgrown its present quarters, and a separate building for the primary department, with accommodations for 175 children, is to be creeted. A contract will be let at once for the construction of the building.

Hov. L. W. Guyer, pastor of a Methodist Church in Portsmouth, is conducting a sories of ravival meetings at the Cabell Street Tabernacie this week.

President S. C. Adams, of the Interstant Tobacco Growers' Association, addressed 600 planters yesterday at Yanceyville. Mr. Adams stated last night that there was no doubt but that the farmers of that section had determined to curtail their tobacco crop this year, and that more attention would be given to the growing of diversited crops.

(Special of the Times-Dispatch.)

DANVILLE, VA. April 20.—The dwelling occupied by Mrs. Mary Haloy, at Elmwood. Pittsylvania county, was burned Monday, morning. While the neighbors' attention was being given to saving the household effects a porch gave way under George Bell, who was lifting a box of chinaware, and fell. Mrs. Haley was caught under it, and was taken out suffering with a broken leg, a number of severe brulses and cuts. Mr. Bell hurt his back badly, and two other men received slight cuits.

The latest reports from Mrs. Haley are that her condition is critical.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

Is Yet Believed That the Board Has Selected a Man

COMPLIMENTS

Board Criticised by the Press and an Advertisement Published for a President.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, April 20 generous and patient public, which has been led to believe that the presidency question would certainly be settled yesterday, has not yet recovered from the surprising announcement made at 7 o'clock lust evening that "there would be no disclosure as to the status of the question at this meeting of the of the question at this meeting of the board."

There were one or two happenings during the morning of yesterday that forecasted an election.

EMPTY COMPLIMENTS.

At 11 o'clock five members of the board went around to the senior law class room to listen to Professor Lile lecture. When the popular dean of the law faculty had concluded there was a clamor for a "speech" from the visitors. Several responded, and one of them in his brief remarks, stated that as Professor Lile lad made such a success as teacher of the law, that there were those among the members of the board who were of the bellef that he would make even a better president, or words to that effect. A hearty cheer was given by the class for "President Lile," and the law students departed with the firm belief that their able and beloved teacher would be the choice of the board for the executive head of the institution.

Then, again, there were many who concluded from the complimentary references made by some of the members of the board that Dr. Page would certainly be elected. The fine results he has accomplished in the brief time he has accomplished in the brief time he has been chairman have shown him to be a man well qualified to fill the high office.

MAY HAVE CHOSEN.

office.

NAY HAVE CHOSEN.

There is no mistaking an election was certainly looked for, and it really may have occurred; but if it did, the members of the board have certainly kept the secret well. It is well, however, to keep in mind the announcement of last evening. It was not said that there was "no election," but that there would be "no disclosure as to the status of the question."

Something evidently transpired of importance, for one of the members said as much to-day, but added that what did transpire could not be discussed at all on the outside.

as much to-day, but added that what did transpire could not be discussed at all on the outside.

When told that it was generally believed that a choice had been made, the same gentleman smillingly remarked.

Well, let's have a guessing contest and a prize for the one who comes nearest."

AN ADVERTISEMENT.

The Progress this afternoon says: "Each postponement of the election of a president of the University increases the responsibility upon the board of selecting the right man," and in the editorial columns appears the following want ad. "Wanted—A president for the University of Virginia, Among other things, he must possess the following qualifications: He must be a scholarly gentleman, a good executive, a fluent talker, a successful beggar, and a man easy of approach and of pleasant address.
